Acquisition and Provenance

Ira Dye donated his primary manuscript material, library of rare and secondary books, microfilm and microfiche collections, and database of prisoners of war and seamen's protection certificate applications to the USS Constitution Museum in 2005. The Ira Dye Collection is an extremely rare and meaningful assemblage of materials related to research on early seafarers and the War of 1812.

Biographical Sketch

Born on December 8, 1918, Ira Dye grew up in Seattle, Washington. His connections to USS Constitution began in the spring of 1933, when his father took him to see the ship when it visited Seattle during the National Cruise (1931-1934).

Dye graduated from the University of Washington in 1940 with a degree in chemical engineering and was commissioned in the U.S. Navy. He served in the submarine force in the Pacific theater during World War II and was a submarine commander during the Korean War. Dye was particularly proud of successfully delivering one of Hitler's technically advanced Type XXI U-Boats to the United States at the end of World War II. Information gleaned from that boat led directly to technological advances in U.S. submarines. Dye retired from the navy as a captain in 1967 and later taught civil engineering at the University of Virginia.

Following his retirement in 1984, Dye focused on maritime historical research related to the social and cultural history of American and British seafarers from 1790 to 1820. His work culminated in a substantial database of personal, physical, and work-related information on 17,000 American seafarers from that period. Dye transcribed thousands of prisoner of war records and seamen's protection certificates to gather this information. Dye's research has dramatically increased the understanding of early American seafarers, including African American seafarers, from this period, and his writings contributed greatly to scholarship in this area.

Scope and Content

The Ira Dye Collection comprises: 149 obscure or rare books; 49 modern research books; 60 manuscripts and pamphlets, including an historically important set of 16 letters from Admiral Sir J. Borlase Warren, who commanded British forces in American waters during the War of 1812, and a handwritten British Naval Order book from 1814; 218 microfilm reels (including duplicates), mostly from the U.S. Naval Archives and U.K. National Archives; 14 microfiche film from the New York Public Library; a database on roughly 17,000 American seafarers compiled by Ira Dye; and Ira Dye's personal research materials, including photocopies, notes, correspondence, and photographs. The collection is particularly strong in three topics:

- The social history of American seafarers of the period 1796 to 1818, with heavy emphasis on 1812 to 1815,
- The operational history of the War of 1812,
- British naval history covering the period 1793 to 1815, i.e. naval history of the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars.

Material related to social history of American seafarers:

The social history of American seafarers is based on three sources of information from British authorities on captured Americans during the War of 1812:

- Records of impressed seamen (microfilm RG59), and reports on impressed seamen (1974.34, 1974.45, 1974.47)
- A data set of records on black seafarers from the Philadelphia Protection Certificate Applications (Research Materials, Box 1, Folder 46).
- A database developed by Ira Dye on seafarers held in depots in England, including Dartmouth, Chatham, Plymouth, Portsmouth, and Stapleton. The database contains roughly 17,000 records with information on the POW's physical descriptions, as well as the names of ships involved in captures.

Material related to the War of 1812:

Material related to the War of 1812 include:

- Letters of Admiral Sir J. Borlase (1974.17a-p)
- A pamphlet of letters from President James Madison on British impressments dated January 5, 1813 (1974.27)
- Miscellaneous pre-war pamphlets showing root causes and issues of war; the newspaper The War; several letters and documents relating to the implementation of the Treaty of Ghent; and chief naval occurrences.

Materials related to British Naval History:

Materials related to the French Revolution and Napoleonic Wars include:

- The Naval Chronicle (34 volumes) 1799 – 1815
- The Naval History of Great Britain: From the Declaration of War by France in 1793 to the Accession of George IV (6 volumes)
- The Royal Navy: A History From the Earliest Times to the Present (7 volumes)
- A History of the Royal Navy From the Earliest Times to the Wars of the French Revolution (2 volumes)
- Admiral Collingwood's order to the fleet, October 22, 1805
- A Naval Biographical Dictionary: Comprising the Life and Services of Every Living Officer in Her Majesty's Navy (a history of all British naval officers who fought in the war and survived until this book was published).

Series VII: Database

The database is available online via the Museum's website at <https://ussconstitutionmuseum.org/ira-dye-prisoner-of-war-database/>. The data is presented in a searchable format, and the form and style of the entries has not been altered from Dye's original files.

Series VIII: Research Material

The bulk of Ira Dye's research material includes photocopies of records Ira Dye collected from other institutions, including the National Archives. These materials may be accessed only for private study and research related to Ira Dye's own research process. No photocopies or reproductions of the documents may be requested. Original documents may be accessed at the respective institutions. All documents are arranged in the order in which they were delivered to the Museum Archives.
