Biographical Sketch

James Sever was one of the six founding captains of the U.S. Navy, and the first captain of the frigate USS Congress. Sever was born in Kingston, Massachusetts in 1761. He graduated from Harvard College in 1781 and was commissioned an ensign in the Continental Army that year. He rose to the rank of lieutenant, serving until 1794. After the American Revolution, Sever worked as a merchant ship captain, but he had no previous naval experience when he was appointed in 1794 as construction superintendent and future captain of USS Congress in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. He lost the position when construction on USS Congress was suspended in 1796, following peace with Algiers.

In 1798, as the Quasi-War with France was heating up, Sever was recalled and appointed to command the 20-gun ship USS Herald. When construction of USS Congress was completed and the ship was launched in August 1799, Sever was returned to command of that frigate.

Under Sever's command, USS Congress was dismantled in a gale in January 1800. He faced a court of inquiry for his seamanship performance and leadership of the crew, but no ensuing court martial was convened. Sever was the only one of the original six captains not retained by the navy following the Quasi-War.

Sever returned to Kingston after the war, where he lived until his death in 1845. He was married to Jane Russell Sever. They had five children.

Scope and Content

The James Sever Collection is an exceedingly rare and meaningful assemblage of materials related to the construction, launch, original outfitting, and initial manning of the United States Navy's first frigates (specifically USS Congress and USS Constitution), as well as the conduct of the U.S. Navy during the Quasi-War with France from 1798 to 1801.

Included is correspondence to and from the Secretary of the Navy, other navy captains including Silas Talbot and Edward Preble, and U.S. consul regarding naval operations during the Quasi-War with France in the Caribbean Sea and surrounding islands. There are documents related to courts martial of crew, and Sever's standing orders to the crew when he was in command. The collection is particularly strong in two naval topics:

- Outfitting and initial manning of first U.S. naval frigates
- Conduct of the early U.S. Navy in the Quasi-War with France

Box 1 contains mostly correspondence dating from 1781 to 1801, including: correspondence related to Sever's commission and orders, construction of the frigates, logistics of shipping provisions and supplies, discipline and courts martial, various administrative business mostly related to USS Congress, and the conduct of U.S. navy vessels during the Quasi-War.

Box 2 contains mostly receipts and memorandums dating from 1764 to 1801 including: dimensions of rigging and blocks for USS Constitution, dimensions of masts, spars, and cannon for USS Congress, lists of supplies and provisions, bills of lading, indents of stores, lists of commissioned and warrant officers, Rules and Regulations for USS Congress, private signals, and various financial accounting.
